

CRI Series — Guardian, Scoreboard, Performer, Best-Hire

The Guardian asks direct admission questions concerning an applicant's history, as related to the job, including job-related theft, alcohol and drug use. The Guardian further measures an individual's ability to perform simple math functions (addition, subtraction, multiplication and division) as may be required on the job.

The Scoreboard assessment measures ten work-related personality dimensions that characterize the individual as he/she relates to the job description for the position.

The Performer is an online tool that combines direct admission questions with an attenuated personality description using the same factors that appear in the preceding products. The Performer offers the option of being completed directly on a PC (using no Internet) which allows the interviewer to instantly score responses and produce a report. Or the Performer can be completed on paper with the interview generating the report via the Internet.

The Best Hire offers employers a solution for selecting the best candidates for job openings. Through Best Hire, candidates are assessed to determine whether they are dependable workers and whether they will be a good fit for an available position. Best Hire uses state-of-the-art online assessment technology which will produce immediate results regarding a candidate's dependability and job fit.
